

Julia Martin

Julia Martin Bounce

When she entered Moody Middle School, Julia and her sixth-grade classmates enrolled in Bounce, the same program that hones leadership skills in executives at Owens & Minor and Capital One. “We teach emotional intelligence,” says founder Kelly Lewis. “Whether you’re 13 or 37, you bring your best when you know yourself fully.” Corporate trainees guide Bounce classes at Moody, the program’s incubator school. It’s working. Julia, here with classmates, credits Bounce for revealing untapped capabilities. “At first, I volunteered just to earn enough hours. Now, I do it because I want to. Bounce shows us how we can make a difference for people.” “Bounce is about realizing who I am and how I can impact people.”

Photo by Agata Schoenborn